Have you recently received a traffic ticket in California? If so, you may be wondering if you are eligible to attend Traffic Violator School (TVS). TVS is a program that allows drivers to dismiss certain traffic violations from their driving record by completing a state-approved course.

In this article, we will provide you with a comprehensive guide to Traffic Violator School in California. We will cover everything you need to know, from eligibility to registration and more. By the end of this article, you will have all the information you need to make an informed decision about whether or not TVS is right for you.

Eligibility for Traffic Violator School

Not all traffic violations are eligible for dismissal through TVS. In general, you are eligible to attend TVS if you have received a citation for:

- Speeding 25 mph or less over the speed limit
- Running a red light
- Making an illegal U-turn
- Failure to yield
- Driving without a license
- Driving with a suspended license

There are some exceptions to these rules. For example, you are not eligible for TVS if you have been cited for DUI or reckless driving. You are also not eligible if you have attended TVS within the past 18 months.

Benefits of Attending Traffic Violator School

There are several benefits to attending Traffic Violator School, including:

- Dismissal of your traffic ticket. If you successfully complete a TVS course, the court will dismiss your traffic ticket. This means that the violation will not be reported to the DMV and will not appear on your driving record.
- Avoidance of license suspension. If you accumulate too many points on your driving record, the DMV may suspend your license. Attending TVS can help you avoid this by dismissing the points from your record.
- Reduced insurance rates. Many insurance companies offer discounts to drivers who have completed a TVS course.

How to Register for Traffic Violator School

If you are eligible for TVS and you decide that it is right for you, the next step is to register for a course. There are many different TVS providers in California, so you will need to do some research to find one that is convenient for you.

Once you have found a provider, you can register for a course online or by phone. You will need to provide your personal information, your driver's license number, and the citation number for your traffic ticket.

What to Expect at Traffic Violator School

TVS courses typically last for 8 hours and are divided into two 4-hour sessions. The first session typically covers basic traffic laws, while the second session covers more advanced topics such as defensive driving techniques.

You will be required to attend both sessions of the course in Free Download to receive credit. You will also need to pass a written test at the end of the course.

After Completing Traffic Violator School

Once you have successfully completed a TVS course, you will need to submit your certificate of completion to the court. The court will then dismiss your traffic ticket.

You should keep your certificate of completion in a safe place. You may need to show it to your insurance company or to the DMV in the future.

Traffic Violator School is a valuable resource for drivers in California who have received a traffic ticket. By attending TVS, you can dismiss your ticket, avoid license suspension, and reduce your insurance rates.

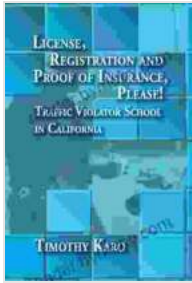

If you are eligible for TVS, we encourage you to consider attending a course. It is a small investment of time and money that can have a big impact on your driving record and your finances.
